Rest In Peace

In Memory of Alison Beth Reynold 8/5/72 - 7/27/16

The MVRHS community would like to thank Alison Reynolds for being a great part of our school. Your hard work and dedication serving as a cafeteria worker and a school bus driver are honorable. We remember you as a hard worker, caring person, and especially for your contagious spirit. Your smile and cheerfulness could turn around anyone's bad day. You are missed very much by so many people, in and out of our school.

Congratulations to the MVRHS Class of 2017,

Your graduation from MVRHS is a momentous life milestone. It signifies new beginnings; giving you the freedom to explore the hopes and aspirations of your own future. Your HS diploma is more than an indication that you have completed the necessary coursework of public education; it is a symbol of your transition to full adulthood. You are now independent, and free to chart your own path forward in life. You can choose to further your education at college or trade school, or you can choose to take time to explore the world as a worker or traveler. It is now up to you.

Whatever you choose, know that you have the support of this Island community behind you. You have been fortunate to grow up in this place. It has deeply shaped you, and you have shaped--and will continue to shape--it.

Your efforts in the classroom, in clubs, on the field, and on the stage are commemorated here in this book. We celebrate all that you have been here at MVRHS and all that you will become in the world beyond.

Congratulations,

Sara Dingledy

Letter from the Editor

To the MVRHS Class of 2017,

The yearbook is one of the best ways to look back on high school and remember the people who shaped you as a person over these past four years. As the end of senior year approaches, so do the inevitable feelings of "Get me the hell the out of here," but I hope you will use this book to look back on how influential our time at MVRHS has been. From the people who stood by you, or those who didn't, from the teachers who wrote your recomendations to the ones you may have complained about behind closed doors, they all have left their mark on you.

In this book, the yearbook staff tried to capture the beauty of the island we've grown up in. For the yearbook, the work of many comes down to the work of few. Although we worked very hard, there is not enough hands, nor time to create the ideal book. However, we hope you look back between now and many years from now and smile at the wonderful place you lived.

All the best,

Livy Smith

TRIPS

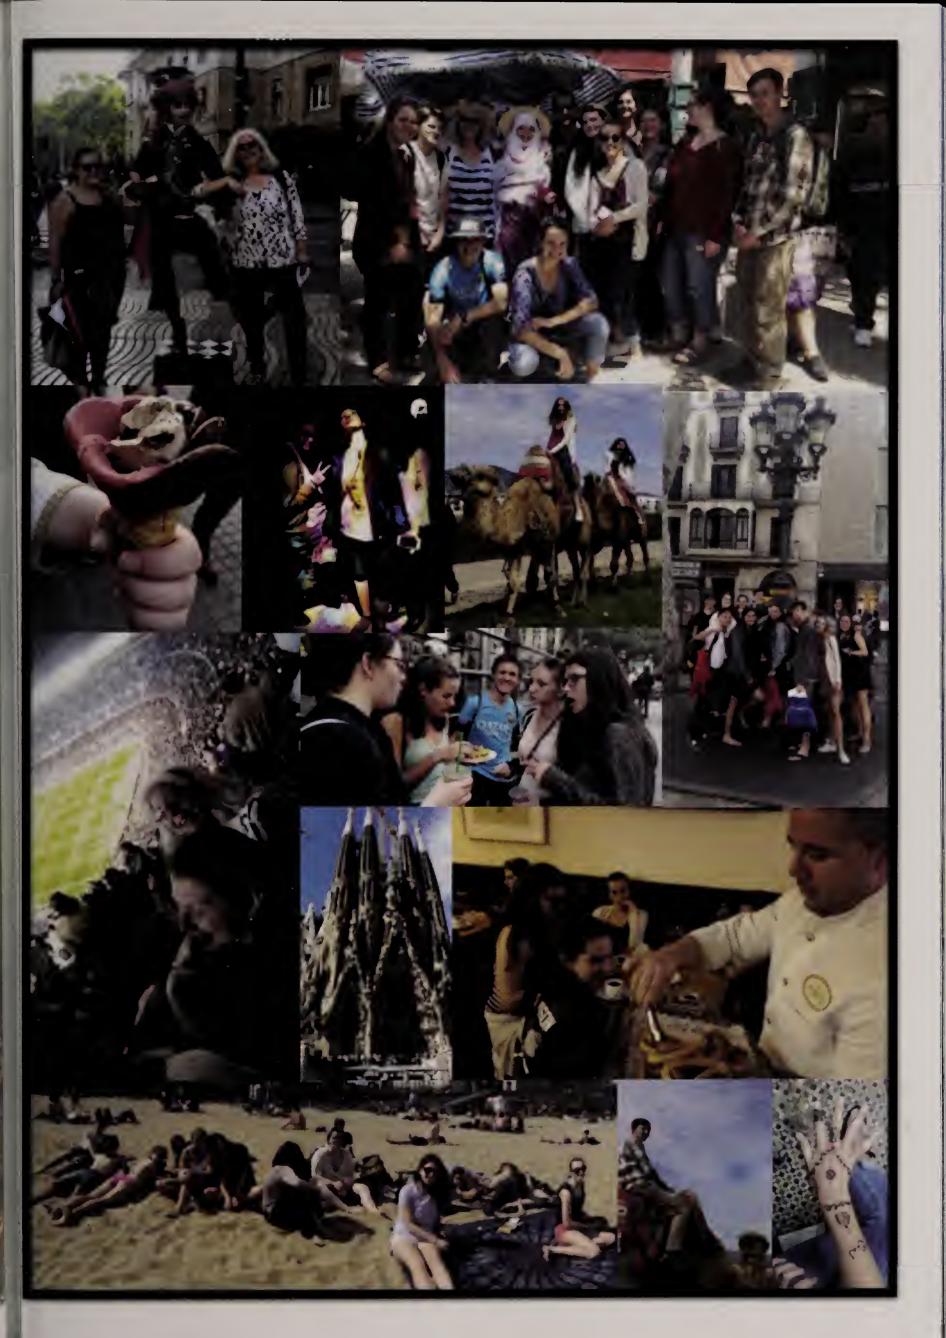

2016: MVRHS in Spain

2016 Spring break - 12 students and 2 teachers left Boston for a whirlwind trip from Barcelona to Morocco and back again to Madrid, visiting many places in between. The students came back with unforgettable memories and promises of future trips...

2016: MVRHS in Ireland

2016 was an exciting year to visit Dublin for the Irish History & Culture class. It was the centenary of the Easter Rising that lead to the Irish War of Independence and the creation of the modern country. We visited the National Museum at the Collins Barracks for an amazing exhibit of Ireland's national struggle and also the General Post Office where the first shots were fired and the students got to pose for a photograph with an Irish volunteer. We explored the beauty of Ireland at the Cliffs of Moher, the Ring of Kerry, Galway City and the Weintraub's homestead in Crossmolina, County Mayo where our American visitors got to see authentic Irish life. It was a week packed with an eclectic range of activities from museums, to the wild rugged coast of Ireland, gaelic football, the seaweed baths and a visit to the famous donkey sanctuary where many of us adopted donkeys who write to us regularly.

TRAVELS & EXCHANGES

2017: Savanna Aiello in France

"Sky above me; earth below me; fire within me."

Currently I am studying French at Institut Catholique de Paris. It took a little adjusting, but I have found my niche here in Paris. Whether it be going to a yoga class taught in French, or running to the local park, I have to say I have learned something new everyday since being here...and that's just how life should be. I believe that studying abroad doesn't only give you perspective, but teaches you how to find it—how to never cease from learning something new the world around you has to offer.

2017: Sophie Bonneau in Japan

An exchange is like a fingerprint; no two are exactly the same.

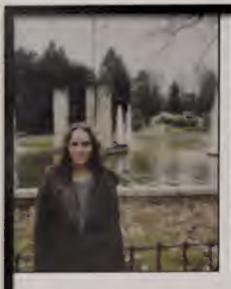

I am currently living in Yamanashi, Japan. Every day I speak a language not my own and am immersed in a culture whose rules and customs are unfamiliar. There are many ups and downs but if given the opportunity to choose again, I would choose the same path every time.

2017: Caroline Roddy in Spain

I am studying abroad in Madrid, Spain for the second semester of my senior year. It has been an incredible experience and for me its the best way to learn Spanish. It also has opened my eyes to the culture of Spain and also to American culture. I hope to return one day and explore different parts of Spain because I am loving it more every day.

2017: Monica Carroll in Spain

I am currently on a long term youth exchange with Rotary International in Tenerife, Spain. Tenerife is one of the 7 Canary Islands located of the Northern Coast of Africa. I am attending the local High School, have traveled to different places in Spain, and had an amazing time at the annual Carnival in Santa Cruz. This past year has been the hardest, but also the most rewarding experience of my life.

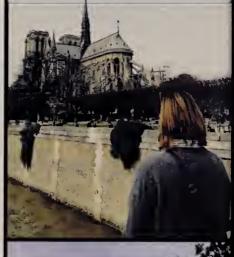

2017: Lena Hanschka and Mary McCarthy in Europe

Mary and I spent more than a month traveling through Spain, France and Italy. We used this trip to get a better understanding of life on our own and away from the island. We learned how to get comfortable in a city where we didn't know the language. We went to a lot of museums and ate all of the local food. In the future, we are hoping to travel again someplace new.

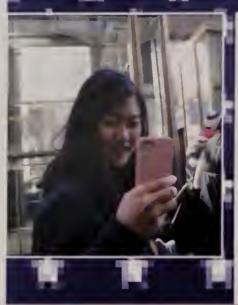

An exchange is like a fingerprint; no two are exactly the same.

I've though a lot about what my exchange is to me, and I've come to this realization. To put it in simple terms, my life right now is like a video game. It's the kind of video game where you are in constant motion. There are obstacles everywhere which you have to duck, jump and roll to make it past, all while dodging the water balloons, banana peels, rotten tomatoes, pianos and other surprises that are being thrown your way. Most of the time you can't see more than a few obstacles ahead, and sometimes you get caught up in surprise traps and you have to find a solution quick. You have little time to think and even less to react, so often you can do nothing but go with the flow of the things around you. Of course there are plenty of support items (friends, family, etc.) that float along your path as well in different shapes and forms, and many times that support will save your a$$. Lastly, there are the coins you can collect along the way. Each coin, a new experience, is not necessary to obtain, but when the game is done and over those "coins" boost your score, "your person", more than anything else. Later on, they allow you to get better gear or more support items and open up new paths for you to explore. They allow you grow and expand your character and mind. Is it hard? Yes. Do I sometimes wish I could quit? Yes (but only because I really miss my cat). But, no matter how hard it becomes, I will not give up. Or rather, I don't think I could give up, because to me this game has become an addiction. I don't want to stop playing, I don't want to take a break. Yes, it really sucks to get hit by a piano, or slip on a banana peel, but in the end my game has cat cafes, yakiimo, anko, manga sold for ¥100, and toilets that open automatically when you open the door. - Sophie Bonneau (in Japan)

AMERICA-SOUTH-KOREA

YEWON SON

THIS HAS BEEN AN UNFORGETTABLE, AWESOME AND FUN EXCHANGE STUDENT EXPERIENCE. EVENTHOUGH I HAD ROUGH TIME WITH THE LANGUAGE, WHEN I FIRST GOT HERE, THE TEACHERS AND STUDENTS WERE SO NICE, I GOT USED TO IT EASILY. I REALLY WANT TO COME BACK AND VISIT! THANK YOU SO MUCH!

New principal cheers in new year

BY WILLA VIGNEAULT AND SOPHIA MCCARRON

early 800 foot-stomping, hand-clapping, and screaming students and teachers helped to introduce Sara Dingledy, the regional high school's new principal, to the fall sports season during a recent pep rally.

Ms. Dingledy — also known as Ms. D — said, "It's really important that the sports games aren't only attended by the parents of the students playing. They're a community event. I think having spirit and ownership of that is really important.

The rally featured introductions of all the fall sports teams, performances by the cheerleaders, and competitions that pitted grade against grade.

Students are noticing and enjoying Ms. Dingledy's openness and accessibility. Early in the school day, for example, she typically likes to walk around the hallways, stopping to talk with students and visiting classrooms in order to learn more about the school community.

Ms. Dingledy's interest in education began, in part, when she was a college student studying anthropology. The subject inspired her interest in and curiosity about the ways institutions or structures affect the behavior of a person or a community. She said, "I think I became interested in city schools because in the absence of a family structure

"Aside from fashion decisions that don't pass the test of time, being a teenager can come with insecurities, periods of general awkwardness."

Ms. Dingledy seems to understand this. She said. "There's sometimes an unkindness in high school. It usually begins to end by junior year, but especially in the first two years, it's like a zero-this year.

She said, "I don't want people to go through a miserable experience to become who they are."

Ms. Dingledy is open about the fact that her high school experience was not great. She said, "I didn't love high school. I didn't have a great high school experience. I wasn't myself while I was there.'

But, after high school, she

I learned that I could actually manage a situation I wasn't comfortable in. I feel like that's where I discovered the most about myself and about the world. Those moments ir time where I was scared were the moments when I discovered the most about myself and about the world."

Ms. Dingledy hopes to builupon what already exists at the high school to create a strong sense of community, and to use the Vineyard community to help.
She said, "What's great about the Vineyard is that there are so many students who have passions, and this community allows them to plug in to those passions. But I always worry about the students who either never develop that passion early or or have become jaded, disen gaged, and frustrated."

Ms. Dingledy understands what going through high school is like if you haven't found your passion; she is striving to create as many activities as possible for student to engage in, thereby creating a sense of community.

Ms. D said, "I think a lot about how to honor the students who have found their passions, without building a school around them and ignoring the others. One of my goals is to make seniors feel like they are both ready and sad to be going."HSV at home, schools pick up a lot of that work. So.I have always been interested in the work that schools could do to help students develop confidence and build communities."

Her interest in social structures and how they impact young people continued to grow, especially after learning

She plans to work on having the ninth and tenth graders in coming years spend more time working together and meeting as many people in their grades as they can.

found traveling was a way to help her grow and manage her fears. Traveling afforded her opportunities to manage herself, to figure out how to get from one point to another. "It's like the thrill of diving out of an airplane," she said. There was something about travel that was thrilling to me.

CROP walkers dine on hope

BY DANIELLE HOPKINS

undreds of Islanders participated in the annual CROP Walk Sunday, Oct. 23, to help raise hunger awareness. The route went from St. Augustine's Church in Vineyard Haven to the Tabernacle in Oak Bluffs. The high school's Student Council, Interact, and various high school students participated and donated to the cause.

"I believe that everyone should be willing to contribute to the greater good. This walk collects food and money to help end hunger," said Olsen Houghton, who has participated in the walk for over 10 years and is the faculty advisor for the Student Council and Interact club. "Ending hunger everywhere is important. How can you aspire to achieve something or be curious about something if you are struggling to get enough to eat?"

Senior Ellie Hanjian said, "Due to the fact that the United States is industrialized and a first-world nation, it is easy to forget the poverty and food disparities that exist in our nation and on our Island. When we can bridge the gap between hunger and poverty, and wealth, we can begin to erase the classist nature of our country.

'My first CROP Hunger Walk was when I was in seminary in 1978 and working with a Presbyterian Church in New Jersey. When we moved to the Vineyard to work at the FOCUS Study Center, we naturally gravitated to the MV CROP Walk, walking as often as we could," said Woody Bowman, one of the leaders in this year's CROP Walk. Mr. Bowman is an ordained minister in the United Church of Christ, as well as a longtime member of the West Tisbury Congregational Church. Our goal for the walk is, first and foremost, to address the issues of hunger, globally and locally, providing food to those who need it, working to encourage self-sufficiency so that hunger is less and less a problem, and to address the underlying issues that make hunger the reality that so many millions face daily," said Mr. Bowman.

This event helps to bring together the community to serve a greater good, and have fun along the way. Senior and secretary of the school's Student Council, Emma Bunker has done the Martha's Vinevard CROP Walk for two years. "My favorite part of the CROP Walk is walking with people that I have never met or spoken with before, and bonding with them over this meaningful experience," Emma said. Last year was the 25th anniversary walk, and the Island raised a record of $25,350. The total for this year's walk will be final in about a week.

The combined efforts of student government and the Interact club will raise around $1,500, which will be matched by the Rotary Club of Martha's Vineyard," Mr. Houghton said.

The Martha's Vineyard CROP Walk is doing amazing things to help end the hunger epidemic in our nation as well as tie the community together to do so. "Personally, I'd like to see the M.V. CROP Hunger Walk create opportunities for people of all ages to examinand learn about the causes c and responses to hunger, to consider moral imperatives and practical responses, and get involved in ways that go far beyond each year's CRO Walk," said Mr. Bowman.

From the first day to the last. Well done!

CONGRATULATIONS!

A Wish from Taber Caron Fanatics...

Bubba! How can it be? Your about to tee off your next adventure of life! You've run the bases of high school.... made a terrific play... and scored a home run in college selection. Your Bruin' to become a great pharmacist... and we are all so thrilled! Hungry like a Wildcat, you'll get what you want from life by being a dedicated foot soldier... kind of like a Patriot in battle. So put on your best Red Sox, follow your dreams, and sprint to your goals. We're not Irish, but we sure have a lot of Celtic Pride for having such a kind and respectful young man in our midst. Good Luck, Taber Caron!

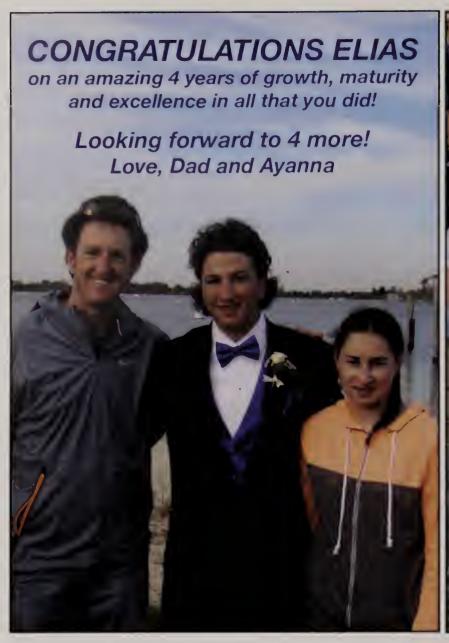

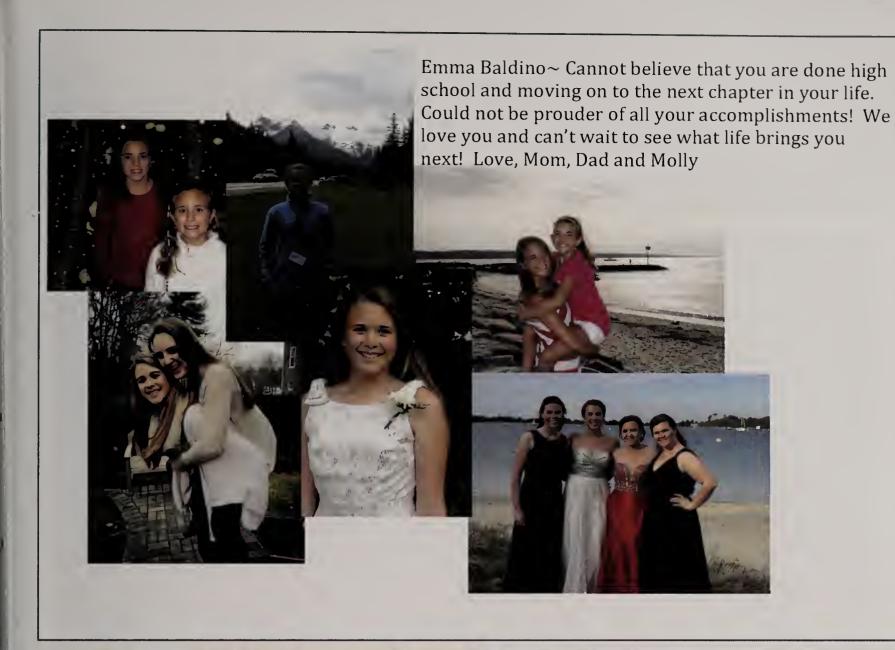

Congratulations Jack, we are so proud of you!

Sophie and Nick, you were a double blessing from the day you were born

... and now that you are 18 and well on your way to adulthood...

we cannot be prouder of who you have become, the way you view yourselves and your desire to explore the world around you. We are thankful for what you have left behind for your family... the memories, the laughs, and so many good times
